New York, June 17.—The enthusiasm over Theodore Roosevelt's return is increasing as he draws near port. It is expected that the Kaiser may arrive as early as four o'clock to-morrow morning. At six o'clock, it will go to quarantine, where the revenue cutter Manhattan, with former Secretary Loeb and other personal friends will go aboard to meet him. Roosevelt will take breakfast on the Manhattan, later being transferred to the Annapolis, which will bring President Taft's representatives and the governors. Then the water parade will start.

By that time Roosevelt will have completed a trip of 28,433 miles. It is generally considered the most remarkable trip, other than exploration ventures, ever made by an individual, whether in public or private capacity.

Predictions for New York Give Sunshine for Roosevelt's Arrival.

Washington, D. C., June 17.—Edward H. Howie, chief forecaster of the weather bureau, predicts fine weather in New York to-morrow, when ex-President Roosevelt arrives. He said: "It will probably be about as fine as it could be, with a sun and a breeze."

WOMAN MUCH HURT
IN ROAD ACCIDENT

Mrs. A. J. Gravel of Burlington Victim
In Richmond Early Yesterday Morning, Her Spine Is Hurt.

Richmond, June 17.—A three-wheeled bicycle, containing six members of the Ladies of the Union of St. John the Baptist of Burlington, ploughed down a 25 foot embankment near this village early yesterday morning and badly injured at least one of the occupants. The horses were unhurt but the top of the survey was badly damaged.

The party with two other three-seaters was returning home after having attended the installation of a lodge on the survey. The team which went down the bank was between the other two. Upon reaching the hill about two miles west of the village the first team stopped to rest almost under the second horse's nose. They were spirited and in stepping about backed a few steps. The driver of the third team became alarmed and yelled when the horses then backed up sharply through a solid guard rail which was supposed to furnish protection, and over the embankment. The first drop was nearly a sheer one of ten feet and horses and wagon rolled for nearly 15 more before they stopped.

Mrs. A. J. Gravel of Allen street, Burlington, was thrown among the horses and was picked up unconscious. She remained in that state for two hours and it is feared is suffering from a dislocation of the spine. She was taken to her home and treated by Dr. G. O. Goutin and was resting more comfortably last evening, but besides the injury to her spine, is suffering from a number of severe bruises.

The driver, Fred Vincent, and the other occupants of the wagon were not so severely injured, although they sustained a number of bruises and had their clothing badly torn. The other ladies in the wagon were Mrs. Frank Frechette, Mrs. Edward Duppre, Miss Mary St. Pierre, Mrs. George Morrison and Mrs. Ellen Whitaker. They were conveyed to Burlington in the other wagons but Mrs. Gravel was taken in a carriage procured nearby.

KELHER CONVICTED;
ANOTHER ARREST

Francis J. Wood, a Grocer, Was Taken
Last Night, Charged with Perjury
In the Trial of "Big Bill" In Boston.

Boston, June 17.—A further stage in the government's prosecution of those responsible for the wrecking of the National City bank of Cambridge came yesterday afternoon, when William J. Kelher, a strapping man-about-town, and called by friends "Big Bill," was arrested by a jury in the United States circuit court to be equally culpable with George W. Coleman, the 812-a-week bookkeeper, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced for the theft of $200,000 from the bank. The jury's verdict of "guilty" was rendered four hours after it had taken the case for consideration, after the prosecution, United States District Attorney French moved, and Judge Clarence Hale concurred, in the raising of Kelher's bail from $25,000 to $50,000. Unable to procure the greater bonds, Kelher was taken to Charles street jail to await the night.

Charles street jail last night held two other persons connected with the case, Coleman, who is within a few days to begin his term of fifteen years at Greenfield jail, was there and a new arrival was Francis J. Wood, a grocer, who was arrested after the verdict had been returned in the Kelher case on a charge of perjury, alleged to have been committed as a witness in the trial just closed. It is alleged that Wood testified as to a check for $200, which came into his hands after it had been sent by telegram to George W. Coleman in Kansas City, under the name of "George W. McTaggart." Wood stated that he received it from a Mrs. Taylor (not the friend of Coleman who appeared as a witness), and that when it was delivered by the bank to be irregular he lost the amount.

In his instruction to the jury yesterday, Judge Hale said that it was necessary to decide that Kelher knew that Coleman was getting the money with which they played faro together, from the bank, he referred to the mythical aunt whom Kelher's attorneys contended had been mentioned by Coleman as the source of his funds. Judge Hale mentioned also the fact that others of the "faro gang" disappeared after Kelher's arrest. It is understood that the government now is seeking to locate at least one of these, alleged to be the prime mover in the bank's operations.

It is practically certain that Kelher's counsel will appeal the case to the supreme court.

Kelher heard the verdict of guilty against him as he was crossing the court room to get a drink of water. He paled, sat down, gulped the water, and then, steadying himself, went to his own seat.

Kelher's trial began May 18, just after the close of the formal proceedings in which Coleman had admitted his guilt and received a fifteen years' sentence. During the four weeks since that time there has been presented to the public, through reports of the court room proceedings, an interesting narrative of the gay life of the 412-a-week bookkeeper.

While sipping at 8000 a sitting; women of temperate affections; and the song of the dollars flying forward figured prominently. In all these Coleman was the central figure with Kelher and various women of New York resorts also present.
